

From: Bob Deneen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/24/02 11:30am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement and AOL law suit

It seems to me that we have more important things to solve in this country than frivolous corporate badgering.

What laws did Microsoft violate? Fine them or quit this charade.

AOL-Time Warner is a greater threat! They are creating confusion with a frivolous court case that gives "the law" its bad reputation for using legal gymnastics to solve marketplace failures.

AOL has no justified claim! I have used the Internet daily for ten years. I looked at Netscape -- in no way was I deprived from accessing it. I didn't like it and therefore I don't use it. There is no other reason than that for any non-user.

Is this a free market or not? If consumers decide not to use a product must our tax dollars be used to force us to use it? All of this lawsuits will RAISE PRICES TO CONSUMERS -- which AOL is already is doing!

Robert N. Deneen
deneen@adelphia.net